In the 1st Essay, it is critically argued from texts of Holy Scripture, that False-worship took its rise after the Flood; from a curiosity after knowledge which "the Creator had not granted to Man;" which, however, Men hoped to gain by religious addresses to "inferior Spirits" of whose Fall they were aware even, before the Flood, "the Sons of God having taken wives of the Daughters of Men."

In the 2nd Essay, "the Cause" of contemporary Spiritual Manifestations is considered, without its being determined; only it is concluded, "that we should not deal with" [the facts,] separate from Religion.

The above is an abridgement of the Scottish Inquisitions, which originate in Writs of Mortancestry, or Writ of Succession. With certain limitations, they may be considered as exhibiting an authentic history of the transmission, by inheritance, of most of the landed property in Scotland, as well as that of the descent of most of its principal families.

Inquisitionum in officio Rotulorum Cancellariæ Hiberniæ asservatarum, repertorium Vols. 1 and 2. Folio. 1826–1829.

These consist of Inquisitions post mortem, and Inquisitions on Attainder. The former generally commence temp. Queen Elizabeth, a few being prior to that period, and cease soon after the Restoration of Charles II, when the feudal tenures were abolished. They are the best evidence of the descent of families, and of the transfer and possession of property at the period. The Inquisitions on Attainder show what persons have been attainted, occasioning their Estates to pass into the King's hands.

A collation is made of the printed text, with a M. S. copy, by "J. Lewis," with the various readings very distinctly written in the margin: this gives rise to the following note (M.S.) on the cover.

Vol. LXXX. Vindication of those who take the Oath of Allegiance to his present Majestie from Perjurie, Injustice, and Disloyaltie, charged upon them, &c. In a letter to a Non-Juror. Printed, 1731.

Another Title given is, "The Oath of Allegiance vindicated by Mr. Hearne, now a Non-Juror." The Discourse "To the Reader," is remarkable for its notices of the course of Life, mass of writings and Publications, indiscretions, and mistakes of Hearne.

The Preface, although professedly an apology, is a powerful Satire. The editor must be surely one who was complying with the new Allegiance.

N.B. A note, in vol. 81, p. i., says,—The Preface was by the Rev. Mr. Bilston.

Brady, R. An introduction to the Old English History, in three Tracts: 1st. An answer to Mr. Petyt's "Rights of the Commons asserted," and a book, called, Jani Anglorum Facies Nova. 2nd. An answer to a book, intituled, Argumentum Anti Normanicum. The 3rd. An exact History of the succession of the Crown of England: together with an Appendix, containing several records, and a series of Parliaments, before and after the Conquest, to the end of the Reign of Henry III.; and, a Glossary of Words in our antient Records, Laws, &c. Folio. London, 1684.

The Appendix shews the relation of the Crown to its tenants, to have made the basis for both Civil and Military service of the Crown. It includes a Statute regulating "the succession to the Crown of Scotland, made in 1373."

Brady, Doctor R. A complete History of England, from the first entrance of the Romans, unto the end of the Reign of Henry III,; a continuation, containing the Lives and Reigns of Edwards I., II. and III., and Richard II. 2 vols. Folio. London, 1685-1700.

The 1st vol. is dedicated to King James II. The general preface shews the derivation of the early forms of Government and of the Law in the Land; and a large Appendix, contains many Papers illustrative of the same topics, and confirmatory of the Author's version of the History, with King John's Great Charter, collated with the M. S. in Bennet College Library, &c. The Author in his title mentions these other particulars of his History, viz: "The differences between the Secular and Ecclesiastic Powers, between the Barons and our antient Kings; our Foreign Wars, the Conquest of Ireland, &c.;" all delivered in plain matter of fact, often, indeed, a translation from the old Chronicles.

The 2nd. vol. has an "Appendix:" containing many State Papers, which relate to the discords of the King and the Barons, and the Wars of the English in France; of these a large number are in old French.

Tyrrell, James. The general History of England, as well Ecclesiastical as Civil, from the earliest accounts of Time; taken from the most antient Records, Manuscripts and Histories, from the beginning of the Reign of William I., to the end of the Reign of Richard II. 3 vols., bound in 5. Folio. London, 1696-1704.

As also, an Appendix, representing the most material arguments and authorities for and against the antiquity of the Commons summoned to Parliament before the 49th Henry III; with a disquisition whether the Commons had any other Representatives in Parliament than the Tenants in Capite before?

The title of the 1st volume makes the final period of the History, "to the Reign of his present Majesty King William," but it did not proceed beyond Henry III. The Author, in his Preface, speaks of Doctor Brady's History respectfully, but adds that he "will differ from him, where the truth of our History as well as our ancient Laws and Constitutions will justify." The two Authors indeed were rivals.

Vol. 1. Contains also, a general Introduction (of great length) relating to the State of Government and Law in the British and Anglo-Saxon Times.

" 2. Has its own Preface, explaining and vindicating Tyrrell's way of writing the History. The Introduction examines "the Title by Conquest of William I." The case of the continuance, or abrogation, of the Anglo-Saxon Laws and usages. The case of succession to the Crown, and of exemptions of the Clergy, &c. Vol. II.—Part 2nd. (bound, vol. 3,) has an Appendix, containing: "the several Charters of Liberties granted by King's of the Norman Race," &c.

" 3. Part 1st, Preface: Introduction, designed to acquaint the reader "with alterations, or new institutions, in the Civil and Ecclesiastical Government," contemporary with the History. Vol. III., part 2nd. The History concluded; the Appendix, with a preface, which names the principal writers, of different views to the author, whom he controverts herein. Both Brady and Tyrrell used excellent old Authors, of whom they give often a critical account.

In his Preface, the author censures other authors who had written on the same events. To each vol., a Preface is attached; which is controversial on the subject of other histories of these times.

Ordnance Survey of Great Britain and Ireland. Series of Maps engraved from the,—and published under the authority of the Board of Ordnance. Among these are included, the Geological Maps anp Sections; which consist of the maps of the Ordnance Survey, geologically surveyed and coloured, by the Geological Survey of Great Britain, by authority of Her Majesty's Government, under the superintendence of Sir Roderick I. Murchison, Director General of the Geological Surveys of the United Kingdom. The various formations are distinctly traced and coloured in all their geological sub-divisions. The survey has not yet been completed; but nearly 3,000 separate sheets have been published, up to this time, which have been classified according to Counties, and are deposited in Three large Cases, made for the purpose, in the Library; on the inner doors of which, Index Maps are placed, to facilitate reference to this immense Collection; which was presented to the Legislature by Her Majesty's Government.

So far as yet completed, the Survey includes maps of the whole of Ireland, several counties, and large towns in England and Scotland, on a scale of six inches to a mile, and of nearly the whole of England, and parts of Scotland and Ireland, on a one inch scale. The one and six-inch maps are to be continued for other counties; and large towns will in future be mapped on a scale of an inch to every forty feet. Plans of all the cultivated districts in the country will also, in future, be made upon a scale of about twenty-five inches to a mile.

Index to the Ordnance Maps. A new Gazetteer, or Topographical Dictionary of the British Islands and Narrow Seas; comprising concise descriptions of about sixty thousand places, seats, natural features, and objects of note, founded on the best authorities; full particulars of the boundaries, registered electors, &c., of the Parliamentary Boroughs; with a reference under every name to the sheet of the Ordnance Survey, as far as completed; and an Appendix, containing a general view of the resources of the United Kingdom, a short chronology, and an abstract of certain results of the census of 1851. This edition was issued "nearly 20 years" after the "last volume" of the first edition was published: the Author meanwhile engaged himself in "correcting errors &c." and preparing "descriptions of every new discovery in that branch;" he acknowledges too, "the great assistance afforded "by the labours of M. Temminck of Amsterdam, whose views have been "directed to the same point." To have published his further collections in the way of additional supplements, he says, would have "embarassed the whole" matter. On this account he "resolved to begin this work, as it "were anew, and so to blend the old with the new matter, as to give the "observations and additions of many years at one view" and in this way the present is improved upon the former edition.

D'Agincourt, J. B. L. G. Seroux. Histoire de l'art par les monuments, depuis sa décadence au IVe siècle jusqu'à son renouvellement au XVIe, ouvrage enrichi de 325 planches; et terminé par MM. Dufourny, Emèric-David et L. Feuillet. 6 vol. Folio. Paris, 1823.

"Je commence mon ouvrage par un tableau historique de l'état civil et politique "de la Grèce et de l'Italie.

"Après avoir ainsi présenté ce tableau, j'entre en matière; et j'offre successi-"sivement l'histoire de l'architecture, celle de la sculpture, et celle de la "peinture.

"Ce que les historiens des beaux-arts se sont assez volontiers contentés de dire, "je voulais le montrer dans mon livre. Là c'était surtout les monumens qui "devaient parler; je ne me chargeai que d'écrire sous leur dictée, etc.

"Les planches de mon ouvrage sont au nombre de 325, dont 73 appartiennent à "l'architecture, 48 à la sculpture, et 204 à la peinture. Les monuments "qu'elles représentent, excèdent le nombre de 1400, et plus de 700 sont "inédits.

D'Agincourt, J. B. L. G. Seroux. Histoire de l'art, etc.—(Continuation).

" Il était indispensable de les accompagner d'une table analytique des planches " disposées suivant le même ordre que celles-ci ; et contenant, outre l'indi- " cation précise sur chaque monument, une foule de documents précieux, et " de détails importants.

" Les discours historiques sont au nombre de trois, un pour chaque art. Une " introduction y prend l'art à sa naissance, et le suit jusqu'à l'époque de sa " plus grande perfection.

" Bientôt le déclin commence ; la décadence le suit, etc.

" La première partie de chaque discours embrasse, depuis le IVème jusqu'à la " dernière moitié du XIIIème. La seconde partie est consacrée à l'étude " de l'époque de la renaissance, que je distingue soigneusement de celle du " renouvellement, etc. Enfin la marche de l'art s'est affermie. J'ai employé la " troisième et dernière partie des discours à suivre les progrès de ce renou- " vellement jusqu'à la brillante époque du XVIème siècle, etc.

" Arrivé dans l'histoire de chaque art, au terme de ma carrière, je rappelle, dans " un résumé général, les faits les plus saillants, etc." Préface de l'ouvrage.

executed from time to time, and where they have failed, the causes of their failure are explained. By this means, we obtain the results of experience; by knowing the causes which have produced certain effects, we can apply them to other similar cases: and, in order to derive the greatest advantage from each example, conclusions and general principles are deduced in conformity with them. The same plan is pursued as regards the particular kind of workmanship and materials, best adapted to each example, &c., not omitting the important item of cost."

Proceedings of the Philological Society for 1842-43, to 1852-3. 6 vols. 8vo. London, 1854.

There will be found in the variety of papers contained in these volumes, some which respect the attribute of expressiveness of Languages; and some, the general rules which give them form and perfection ; the histories of particular languages and dialects, their remote or close resemblances, and their combinations; their Root-words, their Grammars, Orthography and Syntax specifically ; their vocabularies and distinguishing idioms; with Treatises on particular inscriptions, names, and words, and dissertations on Alphabets.

The English Language, of all, is most largely treated on; its history is derived from times before the Saxons' entry into Britain ; their admissions of many names and words from the Welsh, are exemplified, and some dialects of English and Welsh are explained.

The Greek and Latin are largely considered, with discussions on their grammatical and poetical Rules, and a Report upon, and examination of some ancient remains lately recovered by the learned.

Several papers concern the class of Indo-European Languages.

There are particular Notices of the Slavonic Dialects, the Magyar, the Lapp and Finn Tongues, and the Provincialisms of Holland and Friesland ; also, some on the structure of Sanskrit, and concerning the European Grammars and Lexicons of Sanskrit; with papers on the Chinese Roots and the written language of China.

Numerous African Languages are noticed, (the Abyssinian in particular.) Two Languages of New Zealand are included, and the Languages of many Indian Tribes of North and South America, with some vocabularies, and these occasionally comparative of various Languages.

Special Ethnographical considerations are made known, and some historical facts are ascertained.

N.B.—Vol. V. has a paper by T. Watts, "on the extraordinary powers of Cardinal Mezzofanti, as a linguist.

Vol. VI. contains, a Circassian, English, and Turkish Dictionar . (Title at length, elsewhere.)

L'extrait suivant peut donner une idée de l'importance de cette collection:

"The Didots are now publishing a new series of the Greek authors; a complete edition of Homer, with the fragments from the Cyclic poets; then a collection from Hesiod to Panyasis; the idyllic and didactic poets, from Theocritus to Aratus the poet quoted by St. Paul, &c. The fragments of Euripides and of eighty Grecian tragic writers; the remains of the Christian dramas; one hundred and fifty newly published verses of Menander."

"Among the Historians,—we have in this series Herodotus and the fragments from the ancient Chronographers, otherwise almost inaccessible; Thucydides, all that we possess of Diodorus Siculus. The fragment from Photius concerning the history of the Jews, exceedingly curious; Polybius, with the fragments discovered by Cardinal Mai; Arrian, and the remains of thirty-two of Alexder's historians. The fragments of the Primitive Historians, Hecatæus, Charon, &c., now collected for the first time. Then we have Demosthenes, with new fragments; Plato;—Aristotle, is to be as good an edition as we can possibly obtain; the Greek Geographers, novelists and epistolagraphers; the Septuagint:—the New Testament by Tischendorf, &c."—North American Review, (Critical Notices) Oct., 1856.
